

This Is Going to Be a Szable Gas Tank

More than one hundred workmen lowering the huge base of a 10,000,000-cubic-foot gas tank for the Pacific Gas & Electric company into position in San Francisco. The tank will be 228 feet high and 276 feet in diameter. It will be of the telescopic type, having five collapsible sections.

Here are 16 trim craft belonging to Fighting Squadron 2 of the Aircraft battle fleet. They were lined up on the west beach of the Naval Air station at San Diego for maneuvers.

When It's Warm in the Capital City

Two pretty girls from one of Uncle Sam's big offices at Washington stole away from their work to go wading in the cool waters of the Potomac, where they were caught in the act by a vigilant cameraman.

New Secretaries of the Senate

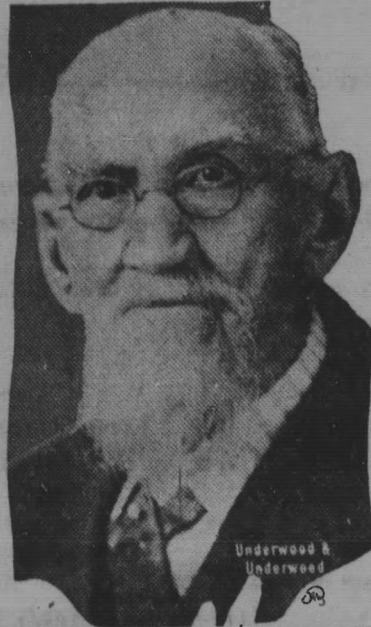

Carl A. Loeffler, left, and Edwin A. Halsey, right, who have been elected secretaries of the majority and minority of the senate. These offices were created by the new legislative personnel act and their duties will consist of assisting the party leaders in the general supervision of legislation.

OF INTEREST TO EVERYBODY

Arcturus is one of the most rapidly moving of the "fixed" stars. There are about 45,000,000 acres of arable lands undeveloped in North Manchuria. Most of the asbestos used in the world is being shipped from mines of Quebec. An onyx quarry has been opened at Custer, S. D. It is believed to be the largest deposit on the continent.

An eagle returns to its nest year after year. It would take 213 states the size of Rhode Island to make one state as large as Texas. Young men of France are called to the colors at twenty-one now instead of twenty. So many Berliners ride to work on bicycles that the police are hard put to solve the bike traffic problem.

LAST SURVIVORS

Thomas O. Edgar of Washington, who became the sole survivor of the gallant host which marched across the Rio Grande in 1846, when his last comrade died at the age of one hundred and one in Missouri. Mr. Edgar is ninety-eight. He served in the navy during the Mexican war but does not remember the name of his ship and discourages efforts to make a hero of him.

There is a certain type of woman to whom it is always quite safe to keep on saying, "Dear, dear, isn't that terrible!" regardless of whether you hear anything she says. —Detroit News.

Pitching Skill Grows With Age

GRANTING that figures do not speak untruthfully, it is safe to state right out loud in meeting that big league pitching of a kind that counts is essentially an old man's job. An old man in a baseball sense is anybody beyond the ordinarily youthful mark of thirty years.

A glance at the final report on the major circuit hurling performances of last season is proof of the correctness of the above contention. In the National league you find practically every veteran flinger of any account up among the first twenty-five men, reckoned on a games won and lost basis. In the American league the proportion is about the same. The answer is that, while a pitcher may decline physically after thirty, he adds to his effectiveness by employing the cunning that years of experience pile up in his mind.

The American league boasts of two men who stand out above the other old-timers because there is no appreciable let down in their skill after long years of service. One is Urban Faber of the White Sox, who, among other things, is a "splitter." The other is Jack Quinn of the Athletics. He, too, employs a "splitter." The strange feature of this is that a "splitter" always was looked upon as being the most wearing on an arm.

Faber, familiarly known as "Red," reached his fortieth birthday last September and made his first appearance in the big show as a Pirate in 1910. Last season, for a team that was in the second division most of the time, he accomplished 13 victories, against 7 defeats. Quinn, now forty-three years young and who was a Yankee way back in 1909 when they called them the Highlanders, appeared in 31 games for the Athletics and won 18, while losing 7. Quinn pitched 212 innings, while Faber worked 200, but the former had considerable of an advantage in laboring for a contender.

That Grover Cleveland Alexander is the National league's shining example of longevity requires no mention. Old Pete, who for years has defied the soundness of training theories, becomes forty-two next February, but even with this burden on his shoulders he turned in 16 victories while losing 9 for the Cards last season.

Both Burleigh Grimes of the Pirates and Dazzy Vance, the illustrious Robin, boast having gone past their thirty-fifth milestone. Last season with the Pirates, 10 seasons after his debut in the majors, Grimes won 25 and lost 14. Vance, who had his initial major trial back in 1914 with Pittsburgh, copped 16 and lost 14.

DIAMOND PICK-UPS

Eyeglasses are worn by four members of Harvard's baseball team.

Baseball is the national sport of Japan and it is more universal than in the United States.

Girls are barred from play in the junior worlds series and preliminary baseball games this year.

At the age of fifty-two, Joe Williams is still the pitching mainstay of the Homestead Grays of Pittsburgh.

First Baseman Red Holt, turned back to Montreal by Nashville, has been handed his release by the Royals.

Leo Dickerman, having bought his release from Minneapolis, signed with the Sacramento club. He is a veteran pitcher.

Infielder James Stroner of the Pittsburgh Pirates has been released under option to the Indianapolis American association team.

Bruno Betzel, manager of Indianapolis, believes that St. Paul is the club to beat for the American association flag this year.

The Bloomington club has had loud speakers installed in its grandstand to announce batteries and other items of interest for the fans.

Joe Cantillon, chief of umpires in the American association, was scouting for Washington in 1906 and one of his finds was Walter Johnson.

No team has ever won four consecutive pennants in the American league since its inception in 1900. The Yankees have a chance to do so this year.

In a desperate effort to bolster their shattered pitching staff the Brooklyn Robins have recalled Austin Moore, a young right-handed pitcher, from their Macon farm.

In one series Toporcer and Sand made seven double plays for Rochester, enabling the Red Wings to take the first "crucial series" of the year from Baltimore.

Mike Kelley, manager of the Minneapolis baseball club, announces that he has signed Oscar Rust, star pitcher for the Notre Dame university team for the last three years.

A woman in Russia has been pronounced dead on five occasions in the course of a few years. An ideal grandmother, we should say, for some office boy in the baseball season.

DeWitt LeBourveau, who came to the front as a regular as soon as he was able to get into the game, has worked his way to the front of the American Association batting averages.

The Baltimore Orioles have Eddie Onslow, in baseball nineteen years at first base, and when Eddie is hurt or otherwise inactive, Del Gainer or Frank Brower, both old-timers, substitute for him.

Late last season Billy Burke, Sacramento outfielder, was hit on the head by a ball and never recovered his form. He was recently released. A year ago he was one of the best prospects on the coast.

Frank Nekola, Holy Cross southpaw, denies he has received an offer of $20,000 from the White Sox, as has been reported.

Joseph Hassler, substitute infielder of the Philadelphia Athletics, has been released to the Portland club of the Pacific Coast league.

A humane action was observed at Navin field during the St. Louis series. One of the local heavy hitters stopped the game, while he removed a butterfly from his bat. —Detroit News.

"FIRPO" TAVENER HITS BALL HARD

Tiny Indian Shortstop Banks on Perfect Timing.

His nicknames are "Firpo" and "Power House." Who? Johnny Tavener, the little 136-pound shortstop of the Cleveland Indians. Why? Because he hits the ball further than any other big league ball player of his size. Tavener never has been a .300 hitter in any league and yet opposing pitchers rate him as a dangerous batsman for the little fellow comes through in a lot of pinches with extra base hits.

When a major league scout visits the sticks to give some well-touted minor league slugger the once over, he takes the fences into consideration. If they are close in, he easily perceives that the homers that Jim Cloutier drives over the barriers or the doubles he hits against them might be easy outs in a big league park. But, if Jim Cloutier is hitting a lot of triples, he knows that Jim is worth trying out.

Well, little Johnny Tavener always has had a penchant for making triples. Last year, for instance, he gathered fourteen.

"How does he hit a ball so far?" many a fan has exclaimed when the 136-pound Indian swatted a ball to deep right or center for three bases. "Where does he get his power?"

It is not power. It is perfect timing; and opposing pitchers will tell you that Johnny times his drives better than most of his rival batsmen. If he were twenty or thirty pounds heavier and could add the power to his timing ability he would be a consistent .300 hitter.

And to think the peppery lightweight started out as a catcher when he was a semipro in Dayton. But, when some one told him he was too small to be a backstop, he shifted to the infield. Along came Zinn Beck, then managing the Columbia (S. C.) team, and signed him.

Johnny did not take the offer seriously, figuring that Beck could not be much of a judge of ball players if he wanted to give a trial to a boy who weighed but 125 pounds, as Johnny did then. But he devoted himself to adding avoirdupois and actually weighed 133 when he reported, and when the season opened he tipped the scales at 140 pounds.

Johnson Won't Pitch

Walter Johnson, manager of the Washington Americans, will not pitch this year. It was rumored early in the season that he would get into the box occasionally, but President Griffith has vetoed the plan.

Plan Stadium de Luxe for Paris Tennis Fans

Although it would have been difficult for the Davis cup tennis matches played in the new Paris stadium last year to have been better organized, something even more perfect is being promised for this year.

Up to the present the stands around the central court at the Stade Roland Garros have been of wood. On three sides the wood has now been removed and replaced by reinforced concrete. The whole undertaking will be completed in 1930.

One of the stands will measure nearly 50 feet in height, and the three others 25 feet. They will, when finished, accommodate some 13,000 spectators. Underneath there will be space for dressing rooms and a restaurant.

Japan Will Have Team in World Series Soon

Twenty years from now Japan will be ready to enter a baseball team in the world series, in the opinion of Dr. Isoo Abe, "father of baseball" in Nippon and a recent visitor here.

Thirty years ago, Doctor Abe, fresh from his studies as a divinity student in the United States, imported the American game to Japan. Today crowds aggregating from 30,000 to 50,000 attend "big games" in the Orient.

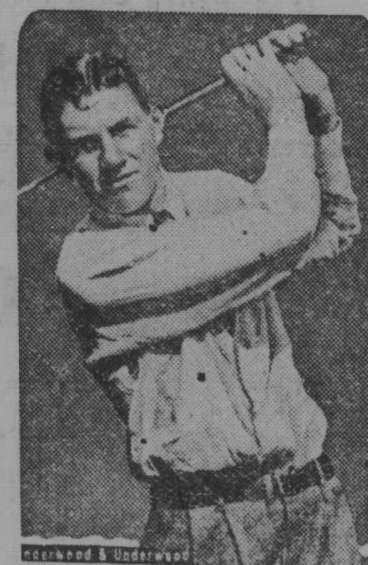

"Interest in baseball is consequently on the increase," said Doctor Abe. "Time will tell how soon we can produce a team capable of taking part in your great world series. Maybe 20—maybe 30 years."

Two Nebraska Gridiron Stars Likely to Turn Pro

Two Nebraska football stars, Edward ("Blue") Howell of Omaha and Dan McMullen of Belleville, Kan., announce they probably will play professional football next fall with the New York Giants. They said they had the contracts and probably would sign them.

Howell, as a backfield man, gained mention on a number of honorary teams the past season, while McMullen, who also was placed on several "all" teams, is a guard. They will report next September, they said.

Keeping Up Name

Horton Smith, young Joplin (Mo.) golfer, is living up to the best golfing traditions of the name he bears. Although not related to MacDonald and Alex Smith, who are products of the Scottish angle of the game, the Missouriian is playing about the most consistent game of the younger school.

Aids Base Runners

"Dutch" Zwilling, manager of the Kansas City Blues, relies on Ralph Michaels, his third baseman, to advance men on base when runs are needed.

Generally Michaels pokes the ball just out of the infield, yet he almost invariably advances the runner on base. Zwilling says he is one of the most valuable men in the American association in this respect. Until this season Michaels' hitting has been rather weak.

Sporting Squibs

The new stadium in Vienna, Austria, will seat 80,000 and cost $10,000,000.

There haven't been that many title bouts in the United States in the first five months of 1929.

The season is young yet, and so far we have heard of no English channel swimmer ramming a freighter.

No father or brother is allowed to act as second for a boxer at professional fights in Pennsylvania.

Helen Wills, world's tennis queen, hopes to continue actively on the courts until she is sixty years of age.

In one night and in the same ring a fortnight ago, three British boxing championships changed hands in as many bouts.

The championship football game in London between Bolton and Portsmouth brought 80 special trains from the North with 40,000 spectators. The total attendance was 93,000.

Mack Garner, veteran jockey, has won about every race of consequence in the North American turf world, with the exception of the Kentucky derby, most desirable racing prize of all.

Panva Nurmi, the "Phantom Finn," has decided to give up short-distance races in favor of long distance running, and is expected to compete in the marathon event at Los Angeles in the 1932 Olympics.

Will Rogers, Jr., son of the humorist, and just seventeen, is captain of a polo team at Los Angeles. The other members are veterans.

"A Thing of Beauty"—

Nothing so advertises a town as its general appearance. No advertising is so cheap or so effective. Attractive streets, pleasant yards and comfortable, charming homes, create not only a pride among residents, but also, have a charm for strangers.

The general appearance of our community will, in a large part, make the difference between success and failure in our efforts to build goodwill and help attract the right kind of residents to become our neighbors.

A town should be made attractive as well as prosperous, intelligent, healthful and efficient. The attractive appearing town gives the community an evidence of prosperity, welfare and happiness, and of good government.

Civic beauty need cost but little in dollars and cents. The greatest investment should be made in the giving of time, thought and energy, and imagination, to a united movement toward a more beautiful community.

The success of a Town Beautiful movement is not dependent upon the raising of large sums of money, but upon the development of civic pride in every resident, so that every man, woman and child will lend their co-operation.

Streets should be well lighted and clean, free from rubbish and paper; stores well-kept—windows shining; well kept lawns and yards; plenty of suitable shade trees; shrubbery and flowers; attractive fences and lawn furniture.

It is poor economy to spoil attractive people and beautiful homes by slovenly and ill-ordered community settings.

The beauty of our town is, therefore, one of the best indexes of our community spirit.

"Only one community in ten is making any real effort towards civic beautifying and planning. There is rare opportunity open to the town whose citizens will strive to make it a thing of beauty," say experts.

Let's get together for concerted action and beautify our town.

Our business men and professional men, our public officials, our home owners and private citizens, our schools and our children, are all imbued with the energy and pride that it takes to make an outstanding town in appearance.

Paint store and lumber yard; florist and nursery men; hardware and general store—all have the material, information and willingness to make OUR "City Beautiful" plan a success.

How many are ready to signify their interest in Our City Beautiful Plan? How many are already planning what they will do? How many will actually do it?

A "City Beautiful" is only possible through the efforts of all, and this page is presented with the hope that it will stimulate both thought and action in

Mayor Rolph

By D. E. O'KEEFE

WHEN the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors went to San Francisco last week to secure the endorsement of the supervisors of that city for their resolution asking the War Department to establish the army air base at the Arden Salt Works, consisting of 350 acres of land in this county, the members at once found that Mayor James Rolph was the true friend of the peninsula. When the matter came up in the deliberation of the city supervisors Rolph addressed the board throwing his whole soul into an impassioned speech in which he strongly advocated the endorsement of the resolution and urged the cementing of friendship of the two counties. Through the earnest effort of the mayor the resolution was unanimously adopted.

This is not the first time Mayor Rolph has shown his interest in San Mateo county. Through his efforts the Bayshore highway underpass at South Francisco was constructed mostly by funds secured from the city of San Francisco. The Skyline boulevard was built by his aid and influence. The Hetch Hetchy pipe line across the bay at Ravenswood was sponsored by the popular mayor, as well as numerous enterprises in the county that brought millions of dollars to the peninsula.

Mayor James Rolph has always been the true friend of the county. The people owe him much. He has done as much for the peninsula as any other one man in the state. Perhaps no man has done more to cement the friendship of both neighboring counties. The mayor is naturally popular in the county and should he aspire to higher honors he will have the voters of the peninsula with him, for he is beloved and liked by all classes for his integrity and honesty of purpose.

Under his administration as mayor of San Francisco the city has progressed and advanced as no other city in the state. The mayor has shown wisdom and splendid judgment in the conduct of affairs of the city. The city government has been free of scandal. His appointments have always been good. His selection of men to fill offices of trust have been singularly praiseworthy. For nearly twenty years Mayor Rolph has guided the destinies of the city in a manner that has brought praise and eulogiums, not only from his constituents, but from the people of other states. With such a friend at the helm, San Mateo county need have no fears as to its future. His protecting arm will be over the two favored communities.

Political Parties

WHAT is the difference between the Republican and the Democratic parties in regard to the national policies for which they stand? Certainly, this question cannot be answered by analyzing the memberships of the two parties. Both have within their ranks prohibitionists and anti-prohibitionists, supporters and opponents of protective tariff, those for and against business monopolies, those who advocate a Department of Education and those who are opposed to the establishment of such a department, and so on in regard to practically every national question.

The leaders of the two parties, aware of this division of opinion within the ranks, apparently, have learned to steer clear of what are termed controversial matters within the party. In seeking to maintain harmony, they defeat the main purpose of the party—that of an agency through which the people may express their will in government administration—by attempting to ignore national questions that are of vital interest to the public.

A political party has been termed a science of government, but when it no longer sets forth definite issues, is no longer a medium through which the citizens are given a chance to define the policies of their government, then it has outlived its usefulness and becomes only a plaything in the hands of politicians, to a certain group a ticket to the gravy train. Yet, a party that adopts and supports well defined policies is a necessary element in a representative form of government and is essential to the welfare of that government.

Those who believe in America for Americans, restrictive immigration, public education, and similar policies, or those who take the opposite view, should have the opportunity of electing men to the administrative offices of the government who, they can be assured, will carry out these policies. If parties already in existence do not offer such an opportunity, then they have the recourse of forming a new party.

Urges Stop to Unlawful Admission of Aliens

AN appeal to President Hoover to use every power at his command to stop the influx of aliens entering the United States in violation of law has been made by Congressman John E. Rankin, of Mississippi. The statement issued by Congressman Rankin reads: "According to the estimates of the Department of Labor more than 200,000 aliens are coming in every year unlawfully. They are being smuggled in in various and sundry ways. It was stated at Geneva recently by the president of the International Seamen's Union that between 60,000 and 70,000 are bootlegged into this country every year as seamen from the ports of Bremen, Hamburg, Antwerp and Amsterdam, and there is no telling the number coming in in the same way from other places.

"A member of Congress visiting Europe some years ago was told that one government had pardoned 600 criminals on condition that they come to the United States. He said that while in Sicily he asked some of the authorities what had become of their bandits. The reply was that they had gone to America.

"These statements may sound like exaggerations, but they certainly illustrate the danger of permitting this influx of the criminal element of the Old World to continue.

"Those who come in violation of our laws are from the criminal elements as a rule. They come with the intention of violating our laws to get here, and many of them manifest the same disrespect for all other laws after they arrive.

"From this class of aliens are recruited our bootleggers, our gunmen, and our gangsters, who are today defying constituted authority in every conceivable way.

"If we are to save America for Americans, and pass down to our children, the glorious heritages of which we have been the beneficiaries, we must begin now. We should have begun forty years ago."

Friendly Co-operation

SAN MATEO COUNTY residents, and future residents owe a debt of gratitude to City Engineer M. M. O'Shaughnessy of San Francisco and his official staff for the co-operation and friendly interest shown by the San Francisco city engineer's office throughout the recent study made by San Mateo county engineers of the county's future water supply. This interest and co-operation was shown not only during the period of study by this committee, but was in fact, one of the prime incentives to a complete study of the subject.

Figures and facts obtained by years of study and observation by Mr. O'Shaughnessy and his office, particularly by M. J. Bartell, who is in charge of the San Francisco properties in this county, were placed in the hands of the committee freely by the San Francisco engineers. These statistics made possible a comprehensive investigation of the water resources and needs of the various parts of this county that could have been obtained otherwise only by years of study and the expenditure of thousands of dollars.

In addition to hearty co-operation with the citizens of this county in the study of their problems, Mr. O'Shaughnessy has promised that when the needs for water in this county exceed the present supply that water may be secured at cost from the Hetch Hetchy supply. This is the source upon which the peninsula must in the future depend, and that this particular development is in charge of a man who takes so friendly and co-operative an attitude toward this county, makes the solution of this pressing need much easier and more pleasant than it would have been without his able assistance.

Criminal Law "Disease"

LAWs which impose a life sentence upon the criminal after a certain number of offenses were called a disease by Professor James Hagerty of the department of criminology of the Ohio State University. "Severity of punishment as a deterrent is medieval," said Professor Hagerty. "Certainty of detection and punishment is the only sure deterrent factor. Only one out of 30 persons who commit crimes is convicted."

"These laws are not catching the big crooks," Professor Hagerty continues. "The shrewd criminals who have no homes manage to get out of the state after they have been caught several times. These laws are imprisoning for life the feeble minded and so-called 'cheap crooks.'"

We Would Too

President Hoover has been informed that the postoffice department faces an annual loss of $85,000,000 for the next five years. Printing envelopes for less than cost will always make the profits show up on the wrong side of the ledger. If the postoffice department wants to engage in the printing business on a less than cost basis, a little deficiency of $85,000,000 now and then must be expected.

Farm Outlook Is Bright For Calif. Farmers

By LAWRENCE MONFORT

SACRAMENTO, July 9.—(CNB)—Major California fruits, curtailed in production by a frost less than a month ago, are now being marketed as a success with each succeeding month will bring big money in 1930, and what is more important, probably escape the bugaboo of overproduction for several seasons to come.

Eighty dollars for peaches—and no peaches is no worse than $20 and the same fruit in such abundance as to make the grower easy prey for the canner. Curtailed grape production is better than leaving that fruit on the vines because picking costs more than the price offered.

Growers have won every price battle this summer, a fact attesting to the hunger of the world for California fruit. There is no substitute for it, and the world is willing to pay the price. Scarcity is but a relative contributing factor. Other peaches, other grapes, other prunes are grown in spots where May frosts did not occur.

The farmer in devastated areas—and some sections actually were devastated, may view attempts to preach prosperity 12 months distant as poor synthetic cheer. But unless he and the weather man contribute new boots to the fruit industry, there is not one major product except olives perhaps, which should not be out of the financial doldrums and returning fair to fine profits in 1930.

There's money coming to the farmer this year, too, and it's easily glimpsed in a three-minute mental flight over the market basket of the world.

Lumber mills in the north adjusting prices for the lower cost of fruit boxes next year; Shasta County, second largest prune belt, prospering practically untouched by frost; bees in Tehama making money as well as honey; fine stands of grain, lush alfalfa, two-dollar barley.

Highest prices in a decade offered in the world's greatest canning peach center around Marysville, but not so many peaches; Glenn orchards looking better; cherries marketed in Solano and the crop better than anticipated two months ago.

Napa and Sonoma facing a good apple and grape market; Watsonville apples looking fine and certain to be profitable; the Santa Clara Valley with fewer prunes than expected, but prices right, and apricots plentiful and spelling real money.

Steaming under a mountain of bales, the Cotton Blossom, promising agricultural packet with the world's finest cotton from double last year's acreage headed for a firm market; not so many but much better grapes all through the San Joaquin Valley. Grape men should make some money this year.

Citrus fruits in the Sunny South heading surely to phenomenal prices considering Florida's crippled condition, failure of the Spanish orchards and a constantly growing market. Quality fruit should be the outlook, although full reports from the June drop are yet to be received.

Melons are coming on a bit late but are bringing home the bacon and cropping riotously; fruit, grain, everything looking fine down in the Tulare basin.

Olives, long a drag on the market not so plentiful, for which many orchardist will give thanks, envisioning dissipation of the annual carryover and possibly living prices. Walnuts promising big returns in the south, almonds, slated for a light yield but worth money.

Truck crops better than usual, damaged somewhat by the recent heat wave but presaging a profitable season.

That's the California farmer's outlook down to date.

The monthly card party of the Redwood City Aerie of Eagles, which would ordinarily be held tonight, will not take place on account of the Progress Week celebration. The next party will be held on August 9th.

An outstanding Bank

The Bank of Italy is an outstanding financial institution for the following reasons:

It pioneered branch banking in the United States. It gave all of its employees—from president to office boy—a share in the profits of the business. It originated the "out-of-the-open" method of banking. It made "of the people, by the people and for the people" banking tremendously successful in California. It established the world's first great "department store of finance." It proved the practicability of democratic, warm, human banking service. It created the school savings plan. It brought metropolitan banking service to many of the smallest communities of the state. It provided adequate financing for the farming and fruit interests of the state. It helped to make California one of the greatest empires of the world.

Mrs. George Rice and her son, Stanley, returned Thursday morning, after having spent two very pleasant months in the Middle Western States. They did not remain in St. Louis very long, the climate

"Death Tree" No More

The "Death Tree" at the corner of Oak Grove avenue and the Middlefield road is no more. The widening of the road caused the oak to be removed which has settled a controversy that has annoyed the people of this community for many years. The tree was a menace to motorists and was the cause of numerous accidents in the past. The late Supervisor John MacBain started to cut it down about ten years ago but before the work of demolition was complete an injunction was issued by the court stopping the work. The wealthy property owners in the district wanted to save the oak, and so appealed to the court for redress and secured it. A contract has been awarded to widen Middlefield road four feet on each side. The tree came within the limit and had to go. While all nature lovers dislike the cutting of oaks, yet everyone felt that the tree was a menace in as much as it obscured the vision of objects coming from the north, thus liable to cause accidents to motorists journeying south.

Gone To Seabright for the Summer
James G. Mason has opened his home at Seabright for the summer. His two charming daughters and himself will spend the season by the seashore.

Good Road Work Being Done
Supervisor John Poole and his efficient foreman, F. W. Johnson, are doing good work on the county roads in this vicinity. Valparaiso avenue from Park Lane to the Alameda has been widened, oiled and macadamized, completing the improvements on Valparaiso avenue so that from the Alameda to the state highway, the thoroughfare is in splendid condition and one of the finest roads in the county. The Willow road from Oak avenue to the Middlefield road is being leveled, oiled and macadamized, thus completing the thoroughfare from the Bay Road to the Middlefield. It is a fine boulevard and the pride of the motorist. Santa Maguire avenue has been improved from the Middlefield road to Colman street which joins Willow. These improvements are well timed and beneficial to the people in that district. The taxpayers certainly appreciate the efforts of both Mr. Poole and Mr. Johnson in improving these roads which are heavily traveled.

Charles Murray Visiting Here

Charles Murray, the southern oil magnate, is here on a short visit with his father. Mr. Murray resides in the Signal Hill district, where his interests are. He says the conservation of oil as advocated by Secretary Wilbur is the best thing ever urged for the oil industry of the country.

Shortridge To Remain East

Senator Samuel M. Shortridge will be compelled to remain in Washington during the summer and will not be here. As much as he would like to come home to enjoy the balmy air of Menlo Park he is compelled to remain at his post of duty at the capital. As a member of the Finance Committee all his time will be engrossed in preparing the tariff bill, now before the committee and which will be brought before the next session of Congress. His many friends in Menlo Park would be delighted to have him spend the summer months in their midst. He must, however, be about his constituent's business and must pass the summer in the sweltering heat of Washington.

To Visit Yellowstone

Mrs. W. K. Martin, mother of K. L. Martin, local plumber, left on Monday for Yellowstone Park. She will visit in Ogden, Utah, Rupert, Idaho and Portland, Oregon, before returning to Menlo Park.

Smith-Lawrence Nuptials
Miss Rosalie Mary Smith and Mr. William Lawrence of San Francisco

were married last Sunday afternoon by the Rev. Thos. Kennedy at the Church of Nativity parish house. The wedding and reception were informal, only a few close friends and relatives attending.

The charming bride was attired in an ensemble of grey georgette trimmed in fox, and a close fitting grey hat to match. Her bouquet was gardenias and lily of the valley. The bride's sister, Mrs. Duncan Reynard, was her only attendant. She was dressed in an orchid chiffon dress, with a printed chiffon velvet coat to match. Her bouquet was yellow rose buds.

The bride-groom's brother, Mr. Edgar Lawrence of San Bruno was best man. The young couple are honeymooning in the south and intend to make their home on the peninsula when they return.

Exchange Club Meeting

The Menlo Park Exchange Club on Wednesday evening enjoyed a delightful dinner at Cafe de Paris. It was one of the most enjoyable occasions in the history of the club. Three birthdays were observed by the celebration, those of Harry Weeden, Fred Metcalf and Edward Derry. All entered heartily into the spirit of the affair, making it long to be remembered. The music was furnished by Professor Barrett of Stanford, while Jack Parsons, the song and monologue artist, regaled all by his latest attractions. W. E. Monroe brought forth applause by the rendition of his wonderful plantation songs and dances and melodies ever dear to song lovers. Harry Weeden, the new president, delivered a neat speech of welcome, while George Whitworth responded beautifully. Edward Derry, who provided the menu was given a vote

Young Couple Wed In Church

The Methodist Episcopal church on Broadway was the scene Saturday of a pretty wedding officiated at by Rev. Carl L. Several of them are to become members, all hoping that there will be more birthday celebrations of the "brethren."

velopments in the field of commerce is seen in the announcement that, beginning immediately, Montgomery Ward & Co., the big merchandising and chain store organization, will pay all postage and freight costs on merchandise sold, without any increase in catalogue prices. "It is estimated," says J. P. Seagrave, manager of the local Montgomery Ward & Co. store, "that this radical departure will result in a saving of millions of dollars a year to the public, which heretofore has borne transportation costs on all orders.

"Where transportation costs have been added to the catalogue price of merchandise in our store this charge will be deducted and the price correspondingly reduced."

The concession is made possible by complete development of distribution facilities offered by Montgomery Ward & Co. through its expanding system of distributing headquarters, warehouses, factories, large department stores in the metropolitan cities and stores in the smaller cities.

Montgomery Ward & Co. maintains nine central distributing plants—in Chicago, Kansas City, St.
Paul, Baltimore, Albany, Denver,

Portland, Ore., Oakland, Calif., and Fort Worth, Texas, with warehouses in Boise, Idaho; Birmingham, Ala.,
Charlotte, N. C., Columbus, O.,

Evansville, Ind., Houston, Tex., Spokane, Wash., Los Angeles, Detroit,
Fort Madison, Iowa; Oklahoma
City, Okla. Twenty-two large department stores already have been opened in larger cities, and chain stores have been established in nearly 400 of the smaller cities throughout the nation.

"Our general plan of handling and distributing merchandise," said Mr.
Seagraves, "makes it possible for us to assume transportation costs which heretofore have been paid by the public. We now have the most complete and comprehensive plan of merchandise distribution ever organized in the commercial history of this country. There are very few areas where our customers are not within short distances of our distributing warehouses, and shipments reach our customers in a very short time after orders are received. We also ship heavy merchandise direct from a great many factories located in strategic points throughout the United States.

We were very sorry to hear of the death in Pasadena last Wednesday of Miss Margery Smith. She was

Three weeks ago after the late rain, we felt that the fire hazard had been lessened for the entire summer. But the continuous hot weather and the drying north wind have had since then has completely undone the effects of the rain and the grass and forest cover is like a box of tinder. There is not a day without its fire alarms and the Fire Department is earning its wage. The department wishes to remind our residents and property owners that warning signs may be had at the fire house at the cost of manufacture. A number have already been distributed and should help to curb the recklessness of certain types of summer visitors.

Plan to Protect Infant Clams

Columbia, Mo.—By raising clams in test tubes and protecting them during their most dangerous period of life, Prof. Max Ellis, Missouri physiologist and United States bureau of fisheries investigator, hopes to provide the pearl button industry with new and valuable pearl clam shells, as well as an ample supply of the ordinary varieties.

The first two or three weeks of a clam's life, by far the hardest in its career, will be made secure by his process which provides an ample supply of food.

The young fresh water clam or mussel leads an uncertain life. Only comparatively few of the millions left by each mother clam to shift for themselves in the depths find the right kind of food on which to live for the necessary parasitic early existence.

The minute potential clams ride along with their fish, seeking growing beds. And many times a mussel that thrives on a sandy river bed lets go of its fish in a mud-bottom stream. During this three-month period, almost every chance is against the clams. Without the proper environment they die in a few days, or are swallowed up by the tiny water animals.

Using the nutritive fluid he has devised, Doctor Ellis, with mature eggs taken from the female can develop in ten days or two weeks, millions of clams ready for planting in the environment that suits their type.

Successful experiment 1 plantings have been made at the bureau of fisheries station at Fairport, Iowa. In five to eight years they develop shells worth, for the best quality, $125 to $150 a ton.

Professor Ellis plans to develop, by careful planting, desirable species not now successful naturally. Some of these make the big lustrous sweater buttons and novelties of special iridescence.

Streams will be replenished with laboratory mussels in the same way that they are restocked with fish.

One small test tube can contain millions of potential pearl buttons. Yellowish liquid that barely covers the bottom of a tube will feed eight or ten thousand dollars worth of shells in their earliest stages.

This attractive sports costume consists of a two-piece dress of olive green crepe and a green felt sports hat trimmed with an ornament of crystals. The dress is made with plaited skirt and the overblouse is embroidered in green flowers of a darker shade.

Never Hurt in Plane, Wrecks Automobile

Boston—Allan Libby, aviator, who never has met with an accident in the air, fell asleep at the wheel of his automobile recently and the car crashed into a hydrant. The street was flooded but Libby escaped serious injury.

Hero Professor Routs Skunks in Dormitory

Newburg, Ore.—Prof. Perry D. Macy, head of the history department at Pacific college, is Pacific's "campus idol."

Screams were heard in the women's dormitory. Macy answered the call for help. When he arrived he was confronted by five young skunks.

He removed the "playful" little animals and restored peace to the dormitory, coming through the ordeal unscathed, unharmed, or whatever is the proper word.

Silk Vestments Long in Use?

New York.—Were the clinging, sculptured draperies of the Parthenon Fates made of silk? Were the diaphanous and alluring feminine garments described in Aristophanes' comedies of the same sheer silkiness that arouses diatribes from the pulpits of this day? Though silk is not supposed to have been known to the Greeks until the fifth century A. D., Gisela M. A. Richter of the Metropolitan Museum of Art is inclined to think that the suppressed females of classic Greece knew silk, and its beautifying advantages and transparencies long before.

Linens and wool were the common fabrics worn on that luminous peninsula, but classical literature contains many references to this, highly expensive garment called Amorgian tunics, Miss Richter declared recently in a report to the Archeological Institute of America.

They are thought to have been made of especially fine linen from the island of Amorgos, a rocky bit of land in the Aegean, with, however, only a few tiny valleys fertile enough for the cultivation of flax, hardly enough, according to Miss Richter, to support an important industry of even a high priced article.

Supporting her theory by research among ancient Greek and Latin writers she has established a hypothesis that the havoc-creating Amorgian tunics were made of wild silk introduced from the East, where it was known from the earliest times.

The name Amorgian (a specific word for silk appearing in Greek only after the Roman era) she accounts for by the fact that the island was a convenient station on the trade route from the east via the Persian gulf, Babylon and Tyre.

It's the next door neighbor of the island of Cos, which by the time of Aristotle was considered the home of Greek silk manufacture, so what was more natural, Miss Richter concludes, "than to call these silk garments Amorgian, just as later the Romans called them 'cone vestes.' To call a material after a place from which it is supplied is, of course, a well known practice."

French City Has Limit on Saxophone Playing

Nancy, France.—A law against the nocturnal use of the saxophone is effective.

So far as known, Nancy is the first community to establish a saxophone curfew. The limit is 10 p. m. One may awaken the quick and the dead with jazzes and dirges from the horns of this lugubrious instrument all day long, but on the stroke of 10 p. m. the curfew goes into effect.

Find Abodes of Lake Dwellers

Friedrichshafen.—Itelles of the days of 10,000 years ago have been unearthed from the banks of calm Lake Constance, and reveal that the famous lake which borders on Germany on one side and Switzerland on the other must have been greatly in favor with the lake dwellers.

The excavations have been going on for some time, and important finds have been made. The remains of 48 villages have been discovered in the water as well as in the adjoining lands. Ten thousand years ago the water is estimated to have been approximately a dozen feet higher than today.

One of the villages has been reconstructed, and opened for visits by tourists. It is situated near Uhlendorf on the German bank. Another, near Sipplingen, is being dug out and reconstructed now. It dates back to the time when man was unacquainted with agriculture. The finds in this second village are proving exceptionally rich.

Owing to the projected regulation of the lake, which renders research work much more difficult, it is expected that the next three years will see the paleontologists very busy at work all around the lake. The general

Tells Hubby to Feed New Bungalows Himself

Chicago.—Mrs. Anna Scharlog, 3903 North Cicero avenue, may know her bungalows now, but the time was when she wouldn't let her husband, Alexander, "bring them into the house," he declared.

"She thought a bungalow was just some new kind of a dog," Scharlog told Judge Sabath after his wife, who recently sued for divorce, haled him into court for contempt on the ground he hadn't told her about the four bungalows he had built.

"Perhaps," suggested the court, "she couldn't read your writing and thought you meant buffaloes."

"When I wrote her about them, she told me she didn't want them around. And she said I'd have to feed them myself."

Both admitted they hadn't been on speaking terms for ten years and communicated with each other by writing.

Find New "Ocean Deep" 28,380 Feet Down

Tokyo.—The Carnegie Institute's magnetic survey yacht Carnegie reports the discovery of a new "ocean deep" on the floor of the Pacific between Japan and Guam, in Lat. 23 S. and Long. 144.1 E.

The "deep" is 28,380 feet in depth (more than five miles) and nearly nine miles wide at the greatest depth. It has been named J. A. Fleming Deep, in honor of the assistant director of the department of terrestrial magnetism at Carnegie Institute. As far as known it is the sixth deepest hole in the sea.

The yacht encountered a typhoon outside Tokyo bay.

The common lilac is a native plant of the Balkans.

French Want Money, Not Checks for Pay

Paris.—The French minister of labor has ruled that wages of laborers must be paid in money and not in checks. Many factories sought to adopt the American method of payment by check, but the laborers refused because of the time required to go to the bank, prove their identity and obtain payment. Hereafter they can refuse checks and oblige payment in money.

Use Electric Needle to Hunt Buried Pesos

Kansas City, Mo.—The latest in treasure hunting apparatus has been taken to Dodge City, Kan. It is an electric needle by which E. T. Meeklin of Moline, Ill., hopes to find 42 bags, each containing 1,000 Mexican silver pesos, said to have been buried four miles west of Dodge City in 1833.

The story is that a Mexican train of 120 wagons and 82 men on the way to Independence, Mo., over the Santa Fe trail with a load of silver, was attacked by Indians. The savages were repulsed and then began a five-day siege which culminated with the massacre of all except one of the Mexicans. The Indians burned the wagons and left the money. The survivor buried the treasure in the mounds which still may be seen west of Dodge City and went back to Mexico.

New "Parachute Silk" Is Made From Cotton

Washington.—For some time government experts have been experimenting with American-grown cotton as a promising substitute for parachute silk, now imported from abroad. The cotton must be treated in some way to impart to it the desirable qualities of high-grade silk.

As a result a cotton yarn has been developed, mercerized under modified conditions followed by the application of a "dope," which appears to comply with the requirements.

To prepare sufficient materials to manufacture full-sized parachutes, the problem has been shifted from a laboratory to a production scale. The yarn was spun in the experimental cotton mill of the bureau of standards. A bale of "Arizona Egyptian" cotton, grown in Arizona, was used.

Fall's 2 Floors; Unhurt

Buffalo, N. Y.—Miss Jean Podkowski, seventeen, took an early morning walk, fell two stories to the ground and within 20 minutes was back in bed again sound asleep. The girl, a somnambulist, fell on ground recently dug and was uninjured.

RISES TO HIGH PLACE

Robert Gordon Sproul, thirty-eight years old, once a newsboy and for sometime comptroller and vice president of the University of California, was elected by the board of regents to succeed President W. W. Campbell.

I'LL TELL THE WORLD

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

He was wearing an Alice blue tam perched jauntily upon the side of his head, and she was wearing an Alice blue tam, and their young son was wearing an Alice blue tam, and there was a crowd outside the station also, each member of which was wearing the same sort of headgear. Alice blue was really not his particular color, for he was a brunette, and blue is usually supposed to be for blondes.

"Why does the man wear that funny cap?" an observant youngster inquired of his mother.

"Oh, he's been to some sort of—some sort of—she didn't complete her sentence, for the child asked another question before she had time to determine the exact species of the thing he had been to, but there was no doubt in anyone's mind that he had, and he was coming home from Seattle covered with badges, which he was displaying with pride to the citizens of Vancouver.

He came from New Jersey, so the legend on his cap indicated, and he was a member in good standing I take it in all sorts of organizations, the insignia of which were attached to various parts of his clothing. There were keys and ivory teeth and jeweled and engraved emblems hanging from his watch chain, and attached to his waistcoat were two or three pins, while decorating the lapel of his coat were buttons and ribbons and a variety of parti-colored announcements which indicated to the curious observer where he had been and what had been going on and whom he had voted for, and how many times he had been to "conventions of this sort before. One could almost read his personal history from birth by the badges he wore.

It is a curious habit which most of us Americans have of broadcasting our beliefs and affiliations by the badges we wear. We seem to keep nothing to ourselves. The elderly gentleman just at the other end of the seat in which I am now sitting in the railway station is a clergyman in the Anglican church. It is quite easy to make out from the cut of his garb and the gold cross which dangles from his watch guard. The young man beside him goes to college at Michigan, belongs to the Sigma Nu fraternity and a sophomore social organization and is a Republican. All this he announces to the world by the decorations which adorn his front.

An engineer and a shirmer in one just walked past me. I know by the gold decoration in his lapel and by the Tau Beta Pi key which caught my eye as he went by. He was evidently a good student in college and is not ashamed for everybody to know it.

It doesn't seem exactly modest to be metaphorically shouting as we walk down the street that we are Presbyterians or Elks or members of the plumbers' union, or whatever we belong to, but there must be some glory or advantage in the custom or not so many Americans would follow it.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

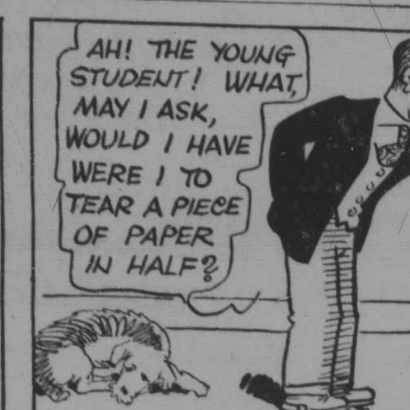

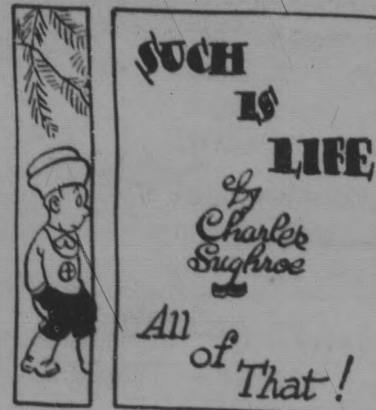

Why We Stop Growing
The reason we stop growing is because there is a limit to the growth in size of the cells which make up our body. During youth, exercise and nourishment permit cells to grow and multiply up to a certain point, but the "law of growth" prevents undue multiplication or size when the limit is reached.

Sulphur in Meteorite That Fell in Arizona
The nether regions, traditional source of "fire and brimstone," are not alone in their quota of sulphur. A meteorite, which descended from the sky to a group of Indian ruins about five miles from Winona, Ariz., and which was discovered by a Flagstaff filling station operator, has been found to contain more than 5 per cent of sulphur. This has been determined after analysis by two geologists.

The meteorite was egg-shaped, but badly decomposed as a result of the years that have elapsed since it fell. It was buried ten inches below the ground. It is of the stony type, but contained small amounts of iron. The sulphur was present in the form of iron sulphide.—Kansas City Star's Science Service.

Airlines painted with the brilliant colors and markings of the birds have begun to make their appearance. The striking color combinations of wings and bodies lend themselves to easy reproduction on the corresponding portions of planes, while the tail feathers can be reproduced in the elevator and rudder and horizontal stabilizers. The bird-plane idea, originated by Berry Brothers of Detroit, was first applied to a Stinson "Detroit," painted to resemble the redstart.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

"Vaccine" Said to End Poison Ivy Suffering

The affliction from poison ivy is now treated in the same way that hay fever is combated—that is, by injecting into the sufferer minute quantities of extract of the very poison which causes the distress. This has been found effective both as a preventive measure and as a method of treatment. An injection of the poison ivy antigen, which is an extract made up of poison ivy leaves, acts in the same manner as a vaccine. It usually requires about three injections into muscular tissue for the cure of a case. Within 24 hours after the injection the itching ceases and the irritation begins to disappear. This treatment immunizes the patient against an attack of poison ivy for about two months. However, the patient is again susceptible the following season. It also is possible before the season begins to give one injection of poison ivy antigen and thus afford immunity from the affliction for three or four months.—Washington Star.

Songs of Plain Folks

By James Lewis Hays

The Banker

Rich banker?—only in a way.
I'm rich in friends.
My bank—the town has learned to say—
Borrow and lends
Friendship along with common gold;
And so, perhaps,
I'm wealthier—and happier—
Than richer chaps.

My bank is small but it has seen
The big ones fail;
I've never hovered in between Millions and—jail.
Folks all deposit faith as well
As dollars here,
And I pay solid four per cent
Year after year.

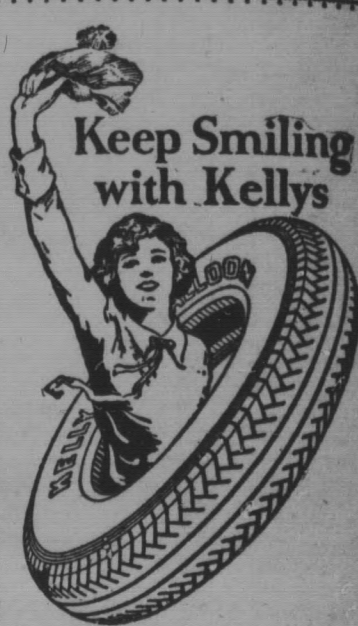

People think I'm hard sometimes.
That's the cost
Of shepherding their neighbors' dimes
So none are lost.
A banker keeps his truest friends
By careful ways.
Right? Well, I'm rich in dividends
That friendship pays.
